

23 Thai youths competing at World Skills 2015 in Sao Paulo, Brazil

23 Thai youths are showing off their skills at the WorldSkills 2015 competition in Sao Paulo, Brazil where they are expected to win in several categories.

Department of Skill Development director-general M.L.Puntrik Smiti said on Tuesday that 23 youths from Thailand were competing in 21 categories of the skills competition. They are expected to win awards in several categories, especially in automatic milling, automatic lathe, welding technology, and mold design and assembly.

The biennial WorldSkills Competition is the world's biggest vocational education and skills event. During the competition, participants demonstrate both individual and collective technical abilities to perform specific tasks for which they have studied and are expected to perform in the future as part of their work. The event is ongoing and will conclude on August 16.
